Bio

Rachel Dawn met and married her “prince charming” young (as many small-town girls do), and embarked on an exciting life, certain she was destined for success and happiness.

Then, it all fell apart.

By 25 she found herself divorced, discouraged, disenchanted, and starting over. The lessons she learned rebuilding her life, regaining her courage, and reigniting her dreams have since inspired countless others. Today, she has a wonderful husband, two crazy dogs and in addition to writing and speaking, Rachel has a thriving career that continues to challenge her to find new ways to overcome obstacles and live victoriously.
